Executive Summary:

OVERVIEW:

The “2014 State of Nevada Food Distribution Report”, represents the first comprehensive study of the formal food distribution system in the State of Nevada. The Food Insecurity Strategic Plan Steering Committee met to develop a strategic plan for addressing food insecurity issues in Nevada.

As a result the 2013 Food Security in Nevada, Nevada’s Plan for Action was developed. Four specific core areas of food security were identified in the plan; Lead, Feed, Grow, and Reach. The plan includes seven goals, two of which are in the Reach section. This report will address strategies 1.a, and 1.b under Reach Goal 1.

Reach Goal 1: Change the current models of purchase (commodities) and distribution of nutritious foods to increase economies of scale, and link frequency of deliveries, and availability of local food to the specific needs of communities throughout the state (rural, urban, and food deserts). The following strategies were identified for Reach Goal 1:

- 1.a Conduct a comprehensive benefit analysis study of the current state and nonprofit commodity/food delivery system that includes cost efficiency, frequency of delivery, and recommendations.
- 1.b Develop a comprehensive client/community food supply assessment to determine what organizations, agencies and groups are providing services as well as the frequency and schedule of deliveries to determine efficiencies and opportunities for streamlining food distribution processes.

KEY STAKEHOLDERS:

The Nevada Department of Agriculture (NDA) provided the leadership and funding to conduct a comprehensive study on Nevada’s Food Distribution System. To conduct this study, NDA convened a working group of key stakeholders from the different food distribution agencies to assist in the research design, data collection and recommendations. Those key stakeholders were: Food Bank of Northern Nevada, Three Square Food Bank, Catholic Charities of Northern Nevada, Las Vegas Rescue Mission, and Angela Owings representing the Food Security Council. NDA also contracted the consulting company OnStrategy to conduct stakeholders meetings, develop a survey to gather data from major distributors, small, medium, and large agencies on acquiring food, type of food, cost of delivery, routes, vehicles, storage facilities, frequency of delivery, and data analysis.

SURVEY INSTRUMENT:

In order to understand the current food delivery system in Nevada, NDA and OnStrategy staff developed the design of a comprehensive survey instrument that would collect needed data and relevant information. The survey consisted of 50 questions. Being a collaborative process, the major distributors were invited to review the survey and ensure that the questions were appropriate and the data being requested was attainable. The survey was refined and reviewed several times by the stakeholders and pre-tested by one pantry and one school district representative.

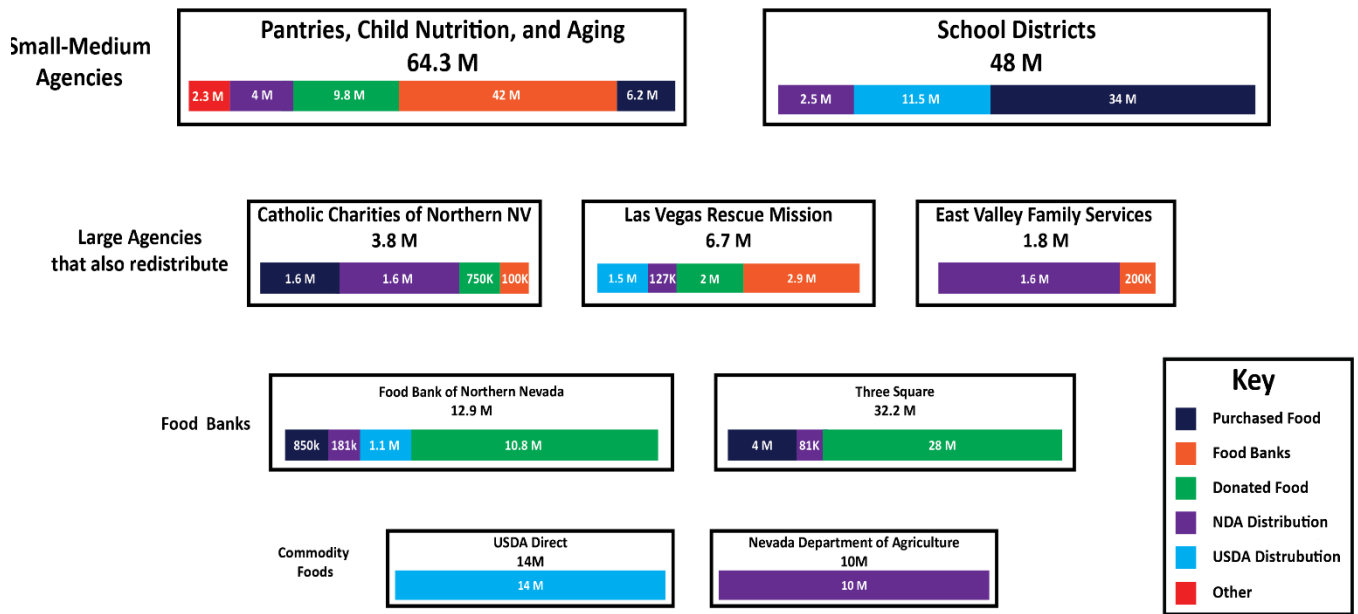

PARTICIPANTS/RESPONDENTS:

The results of this report are based on responses of the following agencies: 3 major distributors, 3 large pantry/redistributors, 73 small/medium food pantries, 51 onsite feeding locations, and 10 school districts, resulting in a 43 percent response rate. Direct client input was outside of the scope of this project.

KEY FINDINGS:

- Identified agencies within the formal system
- The formal system includes: government, food banks, pantries, tribes, child nutrition programs, senior centers and schools and they are identified as major distributors, large agencies that also redistribute, small-to-medium sized agencies, food access locations/pantries and on-site feeding- representing 132M pounds of food in the system (or approximately between 82 – 84 million pounds of food excluding schools.)

132 M Provided

- The current food distribution system is efficient.
- There are 568 food distribution sites statewide with the majority of sites located in metropolitan areas with the largest population in need.
- Lander County serves the smallest number of individuals by site and Clark County serves the greatest number of individuals by site.
- 95 percent of responding food pantries and on-site feeding agencies think that their clients have easy access to distribution sites.
- Major distributors have 44 trucks with 1,494 routes annually (not including Three Square routes due to on-demand system.)

- NDA has six trucks operating 33 routes and three of the routes have 30 percent or more excess load capacity in the north and all trucks are at full load capacity in the south. Food Bank of Northern Nevada has 10 trucks operating 55 routes and 30 routes have 30 percent or more excess load capacity. Three Square has 22 trucks but routes and load capacity cannot be calculated due to on-demand delivery system.
- Total warehouse capacity of major distributors is 234,000 cubic feet between dry storage, refrigerated storage, and freezers.
- 33 survey respondents of small-to-medium size pantries, about 40 percent, stated their storage facility fails to meet need.
- Major distributors' average cost ranges from .11-.15 cents per pound.
- Small-to-medium size agencies average cost is .25 cents per pound with 65 percent of operating budget on food expense.
- 12 percent of food is from USDA Foods, 53 percent is from food banks, 5 percent is added by large agencies, and 30 percent from small-to-medium size agencies through donations and purchase.
- Approximately 66 percent of large agencies reported shortfalls in the amount of food supplied to clients.
- About 60 percent small-to-medium agencies reported being able to provide enough food most of the time.
- Survey respondents state the highest need of food variety as being dairy and protein, followed by hygiene products.
- Pantries stated the ability to provide a fully balanced food offering about 40 percent of the time.
- Southern Nevada Metro Pantries: 51 percent needing dairy products and 47 percent non-food products such as toilet paper and diapers.
- Northern Nevada Metro Pantries: 75 percent needing dairy products and 60 percent protein.
- Rural Pantries: 61 percent needing dairy products and 39 percent non-food such as personal hygiene products.

RECOMMENDATIONS:

- Explore the possibility of backhauling from rural food hubs to major metros as a means to connect farmers to low cost distribution.
- Establish working groups for northern and southern major distributors to focus on overlapping routes that were not at full truck capacity to determine feasibility of combining loads.
- Explore USDA Rural Development grants for storage expansion of food pantries expressing limitations in food distribution due to storage.
- Explore consolidation of purchasing products for school districts and senior centers to reduce the cost of food purchased from vendors.
- Establish a stakeholder group to review the federal food ordering, allocations and administrative funding by program on an annual basis to coordinate across major distributors.
- Suggest if funding is available, revise the food gap analysis to include SNAP, WIC and Child Nutrition Programs.
- Develop online maps to locate services available in geographical locations.
- Review online maps to identify areas in need of food distribution sites (Three Square Food Bank 2014 Census Report identified 89012, 89086, 89129 and 89166 as potential areas for sites.)
- Suggest if funding is available, conduct client survey for need and access.
- Suggest outreach to Nevada dairy processors for possible partnership to address the dairy need.
- Suggest periodic review of the gap versus supply.
- Need to identify members within the informal food system.

OVERVIEW OF THE PROJECT

The Food Insecurity Strategic Plan Steering Committee met to develop a strategic plan for addressing food insecurity issues in Nevada. As a result the 2013 Food Security in Nevada, Nevada's Plan for Action was developed. Four specific core areas of food security were identified in the plan; Lead, Feed, Grow, and Reach. The plan included seven goals, two of which are in the Reach section. This report will address strategies 1.a, and 1.b under Reach Goal 1.

Reach Goal 1: Change the current models of purchase (commodities) and distribution of nutritious foods to increase economies of scale, and link frequency of deliveries, and availability of local food to the specific needs of communities throughout the state (rural, urban, and food deserts). The following strategies were identified for Reach Goal 1:

- 1.a Conduct a comprehensive benefit analysis study of the current state and nonprofit commodity/food delivery system that includes cost efficiency, frequency of delivery, and recommendations.
- 1.b Develop a comprehensive client/community food supply assessment to determine what organizations, agencies and groups are providing services as well as the frequency and schedule of deliveries to determine efficiencies and opportunities for streamlining food distribution processes.

Therefore, this project seeks to:

- Determine gaps in client (food insecure individuals) reach and access in charitable organizations and food distribution system that support food security in the State of Nevada.
- Identify gaps in client food quantity and nutrient dense food as distributed through the formal food system of USDA Foods, food banks, food pantries, child nutrition and aging agencies.
- Find efficiencies in food flow such as distribution routes between the major distributors in the food system

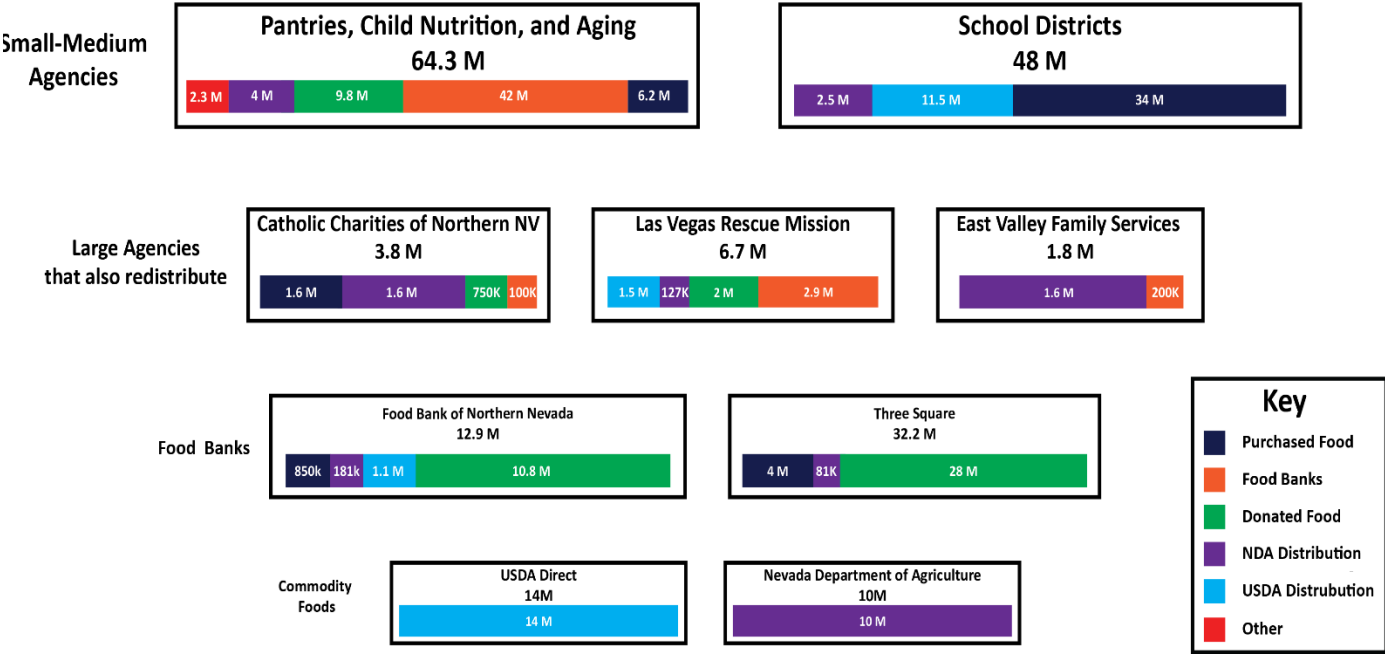

NDA provided the leadership and funding to conduct a comprehensive study on Nevada's Food Distribution System. To conduct this study, NDA convened a working group of key stakeholders from the different food distribution agencies to assist in the research design, data collection and recommendations. Those key stakeholders were: Food Bank of Northern Nevada, Three Square Food Bank, Catholic Charities of Northern Nevada, Las Vegas Rescue Mission, and Angela Owings representing the Food Security Council. NDA also contracted the consulting company OnStrategy to conduct stakeholders meetings, develop a survey to gather data from major distributors, small, medium, and large agencies on acquiring food, type of food, cost of delivery, routes, vehicles, storage facilities, frequency of delivery, and data analysis.

The survey was designed to:

- Provide overview of food delivery system
- Analyze the reach and access to identify areas of need
- Analyze the food quantity and nutritional balance of food distributed to identify shortages
- Map and review distribution routes to identify potential increase in load or combination of routes to create a coordinated system
- Analyze cost of delivery
- Document current efficiencies and effectiveness

Results of survey were compiled in “2014 State of Nevada Food Distribution Report”, and this report represents the first comprehensive study of the formal food distribution system in the State of Nevada. The report documents 132 million pounds of food distributed to individuals and the chart below illustrates the pounds of food that were identified as a USDA commodity food, purchased food or donated food and the major distributors that provided food for pantries, child nutrition programs, aging, and school districts.

132 M Provided

Major distributor volumes such as NDA USDA Foods are NOT double counted, but diagram illustrates how food is disbursed*

The formal system includes:

- Government, food banks, pantries, tribes, child nutrition programs, senior centers and schools – representing 132M pounds of food in the system.

For the purposes of this report:

- Schools will be excluded unless noted and 84 million pounds of food were distributed by government, food banks, pantries, tribes, child nutrition programs, and senior centers.

RESEARCH METHODOLOGY

Survey Development

In order to understand the current food delivery system in Nevada, NDA and OnStrategy staff developed the design of a comprehensive survey instrument that would collect needed data and relevant information.

The survey consisted of 50 questions. Being a collaborative process, the major distributors were invited to review the survey and ensure that the questions were appropriate and the data being requested was attainable. The survey was refined and reviewed several times by the stakeholders and pre-tested by one pantry and one school district representative.

During the design process, it was determined that Nevada has a formal and informal process for providing food assistance. The formal process includes the NDA, Food Bank of Northern Nevada, Three Square Food Bank, Las Vegas Rescue Mission, East Valley Family Services, and Catholic Charities of Northern Nevada which are designated as the major distributors. Major distributors indicates those agencies that provide food and non-food supplies to food pantries, child care centers, schools, senior centers and youth rehabilitation programs and may operate their own pantry as well as a congregate feeding program. Also included in the formal process are small/medium pantries, Residential Child Care Centers (RCCI), Child and Adult Care Food Program (CACFP) sponsors, Summer Food Service Program (SFSP) sponsors, school districts participating in the National School Lunch Program (NSLP), senior programs and Nutrition Services Incentive Program (NSIP) who receive food and non-food supplies from one or more of the major distributors.

The informal process includes non-profit and faith-based organizations that are included on Nevada's 211 web site, but do not receive food assistance from one of the major distributors. Frequently, these organizations are open on a limited basis/hours and instruct the recipient to call the organization to check for food availability. The Nevada 211 web site lists approximately 200 organizations. This report addresses only the formal process.

Process of data collection:

The electronic survey was sent to the following groups:

- Major Distributors, including Large Food Pantries/redistributors
- Small/medium sized food pantries
- Child Nutrition: RCCI, Child Care, etc. (programs not including Schools)
- Senior Programs: Senior Centers, etc. NSIP is senior congregate USDA Foods program
- School Districts

The list of agencies was compiled based on the client list of all major distributors.

The major distributors completed the same electronic survey as did the other agencies. Additionally, the major distributors provided the following information:

- Distribution routes for an average 12 month period,
- Food volumes and categories supplied to every receiving agency for fiscal year ending July 2014,
- Operating budgets for fiscal year ending July 2014.

The data was collected from July-August 2014 via three email invitations, and non-responders were contacted twice via phone to encourage response to the survey. For list of all participating agencies see Appendix A.

The results of this report are based on responses of the following agencies: 3 major distributors, 3 large pantry/redistributors, 73 small/medium food pantries, 51 onsite feeding locations and 10 school districts, resulting in a 43 percent response rate. Direct client input was outside of the scope of this project.

The process to develop this report was conducted with a committee of stakeholders via a consensus driven process to develop the research tool, analysis and report. Key milestones for the report are contained in Appendix B Stakeholder Process Major Milestones

Research Methodology to Establish Need

To develop recommendations focused on system improvement, it was important to establish the client need. Need is articulated in three areas:

1. Access to Food: Focus of this research is on charitable, no-cost sources of food only.
2. Food Shortfall: Because the total volume of food needed fluctuates based on numerous factors, amounts listed in this report are intended to be directional, not absolute fact. Data available to calculate total pounds of food needed is used to establish the “Budget Shortfall” (the gap between what an individual needs from what he/she secures on own) and not the “Absolute Need” (if the individual was starting from nothing). To establish the budget shortfall, this study used the 2013 USDA Food Insecurity Rate and the number of people living at or below 200 percent poverty at the time of the 2010 US Census. Further, the 2012 American Community Survey reported food insecurity on average occurs 7 months out of 12. All these data points were used to establish the total volume of food needed.
3. Variety of Food: The Low Cost Meal Plan established by the USDA as a minimal nutritional diet was used to establish the variety of food needed.

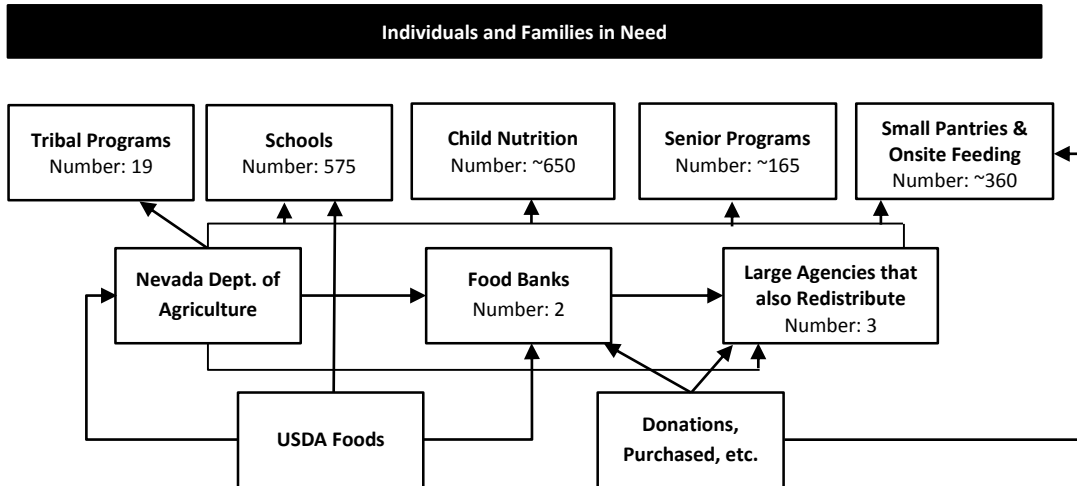

Information on technical notes and detailed explanations on used calculations when determining food insecure households, food insecure person and summary of need (absolute and gap) is found in Appendix C Establishing Need – Technical Notes.

FINDINGS AND RESULTS

Food Distribution System:

The food delivery in the State of Nevada is comprised of an ecosystem of agencies providing bags of food to prepare meals in the home and prepared meals to be consumed onsite. The system is fairly structured with the larger agencies (Nevada Department of Agriculture, two Food Banks and three large pantries/on-site feeding agencies) called “major distributors.” At the small food pantry and on-site feeding location, the system is more dynamic. An overview of the system is provided in Graph 1.

Graph 1. Food Distribution System:

This report uses the following terms to refer to the various agencies listed above.

- Major Distributors: Those agencies that provide and re-distribute food. (NDA, Food Bank of Northern Nevada, Three Square)
- Large Agencies that also Redistribute: Those agencies that re-distribute food as well as large scale direct service operations. (Las Vegas Rescue Mission, Catholic Charities of Northern Nevada, East Valley Family Services)
- Small-to-Medium Sized Agencies: Those agencies that serve clients directly.
- Food Access Locations/Pantries: Locations where bags of food are provided such as food pantries.
- On-Site Feeding Sites: Locations where meals are served. Some Food Distribution Sites also have on-site feeding.

Food Distribution Agencies:

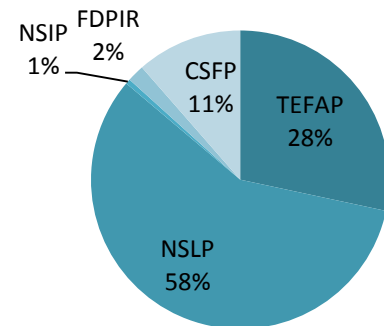

Major Distributors

Below are descriptions of the major distributing agencies which highlight their programs and activities. Each major distributor provide the information contained in the descriptions.

Nevada Department of Agriculture (NDA)

The Food Distribution Programs are federally funded and administered by the United States Department of Agriculture, Food and Nutrition Service. The NDA's Food and Nutrition Division administers the programs at the state level and distributes food statewide. USDA foods support the following programs:

- Children: National School Lunch Program (NSLP), School Breakfast Program (SBP), Summer Food Service Program (SFSP), Child and Adult Care Food Program (CACFP)
- Low-Income Seniors: Nutrition Service Incentive Program (NSIP), Commodity Supplemental Food Program (CSFP)
- Low-Income Families: The Emergency Food Assistance Program (TEFAP)
- Indian Reservations: Food Distribution Program on Indian Reservation (FDPIR)

By combining these programs under one division, Food and Nutrition has been able to provide a combined system to deliver foods to low-income individuals, children and seniors statewide. USDA Food represent about 19 percent of the all food in the system, or 24 million out of 132 million pounds. Of the total in 2013, about 45 percent is distributed to non-school specific programs. Of all the non-school specific programs, TEFAP is the largest, distributing 9.8 million pounds overall (4.5 million in the North and 5.3 million in the South).

Note: *Pounds of food received and distributed reflect a point in time. While NDA may not have delivered all the food in the same fiscal year, this is a picture in time of food that came in and food that went out for the same time period.

Food Banks

Food banks are the “wholesalers” of the food distribution system, with Three Square serving the South and the Food Bank of Northern Nevada serving the North. Both food banks serve large food pantries as well as small-to-medium sized pantries. The largest food source, over 80 percent, is donations with the remainder coming from purchased and USDA foods. Overall, food banks contributed about 35 percent of the total food in the system in 2013 and they distributed about 45 million of the 132 million pounds of food. For further clarification on donated food, it is helpful to point out all donated food is donated for a reason – short “sell by” date, damage to packaging, surplus inventory, etc. Food past the sell by date has been evaluated for safety before distribution in conjunction with manufacturers’ information. Food Banks are state certified in food safety and evaluation.

Three Square

In operation since 2007, Three Square serves the southern Nevada counties of Clark, Lincoln, Nye and Esmeralda. Three Square sources food, raises funds, and uses on-demand delivery to supply partner agencies with the food and services to provide food directly to hungry people in hundreds of neighborhood locations. Three Square does not provide food directly to clients from its facility. While Three Square receives the smallest share of USDA foods, they have the largest growth capacity per their expanding infrastructure, budget, reach and demand on delivery system. Three Square also operates one of the largest child nutrition programs in the county, providing Backpack for Kids, after-school, summer meals and school mobile pantries to more than 250 school campuses.

(HIA stands for the Hunger In America – Clark County Local Report.)

Food Bank of Northern Nevada (FBNN)

In operation since 1981, the Food Bank of Northern Nevada service area covers 90,000 square miles including 13 northern Nevada counties. Food Bank of Northern Nevada is a regional food distribution center and support system for more than 135 partner agencies serving the needy, ill, the elderly and children. Partners include emergency food pantries and senior meal programs, child care centers, group homes and rehabilitation centers, family and domestic violence shelters, resource centers and various youth programs, all of which offer bags of groceries, meals or snacks. FBNN conducts 7 direct service programs for vulnerable populations: Kids Café, school pantries, senior food boxes, SNAP (food stamp) outreach, Mobile Pantry (which provides 1.7M pounds of produce annually), child and family nutrition education/shopping on a budget, and works on long-term, root cause/poverty issues as well.

Large Agencies that also Redistribute

The three Large Agencies function as re-distributors, on a smaller scale than food banks, as well as being direct service providers of either packaged food or meals, or both. The Las Vegas Rescue Mission, Catholic Charities of Northern Nevada and East Valley Family Services run sizable operations in the two metro areas in Nevada. The sources of food varied and are outlined for each agency below. Overall, these agencies contributed about 3 percent of the total food in the system in 2013 and they distributed or re-distributed about 12 of the 132 million pounds of food overall. Suggested system improvements cited by these agencies included the need to provide greater access to food for their clients and larger quantities of food.

Las Vegas Rescue Mission (LVRM)

In operation since 1970, Las Vegas Rescue Mission provides services in downtown Las Vegas. LVRM operates a dining room serving 1,000 dinners daily, a food pantry distributing emergency food to families and monthly deliveries to senior-living complexes. In addition to food assistance, LVRM provides shelter, clothing and other mental health and spiritual services. LVRM sources of food are 26 percent USDA Food, 47 percent food bank, and 33 percent donated. Las Vegas Rescue Mission’s Emergency Pantry can infrequently provide a balanced food offering.

Regarding food resources, CCNNV operates the St. Vincent’s Dining Room which serves an average of 550 people a free hot meal daily, along with the St. Vincent’s Food Pantry, the largest food pantry in the state of Nevada, open 6 days a week directly providing free food to 15,000 people monthly. As an extension of our pantry, we provide food and case management resources to 35 partner pantries covering 4 counties. In addition, CCNNV operates 13 other programs ranging from shelter to adoption to immigration. CCNNV sources of food are 49 percent USDA Food, 2 percent food bank, 17 percent

East Valley Family Services (EVFS)

East Valley Family Services was established in 2001. The focus of the agency is to strengthen families, neighborhoods, and the community through programs that promote family wellness, economic stability, and social responsibility. The Senior USDA Foods program is geared to augment the diets of people age 60 and over. Through the USDA Food program, EVFS is able to provide seniors with two bags of groceries per month. Entrance into the Senior USDA Food program is based on space availability. In partnership with Three Square, seniors also receive weekend food through a program called Senior Share. Food is also distributed in the Greater Las Vegas area through the TEFAP program. East Valley values its food programs, not only for health and nutrition but also an opportunity for the families to be assessed and provided with other services.

Small-to-Medium Food Pantries/On-Site Feeding Agencies

Small-to-Medium Food Pantries/On-Site Feeding Agencies included 192 food pantries that provide packaged food products, 14 child nutrition programs providing meals through RCCI and CACFP programs, and 30 senior centers providing meals through NSIP. Because food pantries represent the largest group the results are reflective of this segment unless otherwise noted. Of the small-to-medium food pantries and on-site feeding agencies, 51 congregate feeding sites were reported.

Overall, roughly 28 percent of food is acquired by sources other than NDA and the Food Banks. These agencies reported acquiring about 10 percent of food from NDA, 60 percent from food banks, 17 percent locally donated and the remaining purchased at retail. Senior programs reported buying 50 percent from food vendors.

The graph below demonstrates the number of small-to-medium food pantries and on-site feeding agencies and the amount of dollars they spend on sourcing food other than NDA and Food Banks. Approximately 35 percent of the responding agencies do not purchase food from other sources than major distributors; and 65 percent of them have some financial resources to make purchases needed. Only five responding agencies are spending more than $10k on purchases; 18 agencies are making food purchases valued at $1,001 - $10,000. The majority of responding agencies that are purchasing food from other sources than NDA and Food Banks make food purchases in the amount between $1 -$500, to supplement their offerings.

Graph 2 – Monthly expenditure on food source other than NDA & Food Banks:

These agencies were generally positive and satisfied with their relationships with NDA and the two food banks, citing reliable delivery and good access to food. Some indicated key reasons for sourcing food outside of NDA and Food Banks availability as cost and variety of food. Senior and child meal programs are required to follow USDA meal patterns.

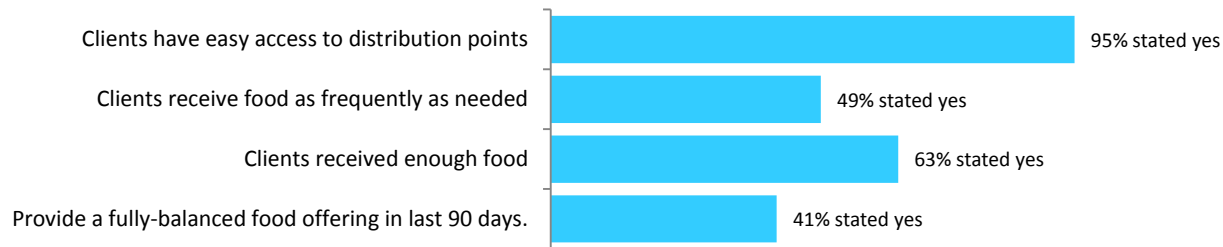

Pantries have an average annual operating budget around $15,000. About 65 percent of the budget is food expense, 15 percent for labor, 15 percent for operations, and 5 percent for other. Small pantries reported the majority of the hours required to operate are provided through volunteers and some have no paid staff. Hours of operations varied widely.

Hours of Operation

Most pantry operations are volunteer run so their hours of operations vary widely. For detailed list please see Appendix D Pantry Hours of Operations.

Based on the survey results, the graph below indicates pantry perception of food supply and access to food they provide to their clients:

Graph 3. Food Access and Supply – Pantry Perception:

Service limitations reflected are based on the pantries’ perspective of the ability to meet client needs for access, food frequency and quantity of food. Frequency is the biggest service limitation. Of those that said clients do not have frequent enough access cited the primary reasons as 1) limitations of frequency for different programs do not address client needs and 2) clients would like to get food 3 times per week. Overall, food pantries view it as their mission to supplement food needs, not be the total single source.

Senior Programs, Child Nutrition & Tribal Programs

Due to the small sample size from senior, child nutrition and tribal programs, this research cannot draw specific conclusions about these three groups of programs. Inclusive in the report and food maps are the number of food distribution sites as well as food sources. As it relates to program need, operational overview and opportunities for improvement, these areas would be topics to explore in a separate research effort.

School Districts

School districts play an integral role in the statewide food distribution system, with roughly 48 million of the 132 million pounds flowing through 16 districts to 575 schools. Clark County, as the fifth largest district in the country, represents 38 million or fully 80 percent of all food. Due to its sheer size, USDA distributes 11 million pounds of USDA foods for National School Lunch Program directly to the district’s warehouses. On the average, schools receive about 25 percent of food distributed from the USDA Food program and the remaining is secured through food vendors such as Sysco. According to the responding food directors, the primary reason for purchasing food is to acquire food not available through USDA Foods. The secondary reason is delivery and cost. Because commodities is distributed through entitlement, it is not sufficient to be the sole source of food for a school district. Availability of all food types needed is limited by what comes from USDA Foods versus food purchased.

FOOD DISTRIBUTION LOGISTICS

This section describes the location and access to food, delivery routes, truck capacity, storage, and cost.

Food Distribution Sites

The mapping of food distribution sites is a comprehensive view of programs offered by survey respondents that provide food access to clients. Survey respondents reported a variety of hours and days of operation indicating that food access for clients varies between agency operations. It may result in clients traveling a greater distance to get to an open pantry. This map may provide base information for further studies to determine what available resources could be implemented to place distribution sites in the area of need.

The map below illustrates the formal 2014 distribution sites for all programs. The map uses a color coded symbol to indicate which distributing agency is providing a program at a site. In some instances more than one program is being provided at a site. School sites are school district central warehouses and do not include individual school sites.

Agencies and programs included are:

Nevada Department of Agriculture: CACFP, CSFP, SFSP, TEFAP, NSLP, NSIP, and FDIPIR;

Food Bank Northern Nevada: Agency Food Pantries, Mobile Pantries, Backpack, CSFP, school pantries, TEFAP, SFSP, and Kids Café*;

Catholic Charities: Direct service location, Agency Food Pantries, and TEFAP;

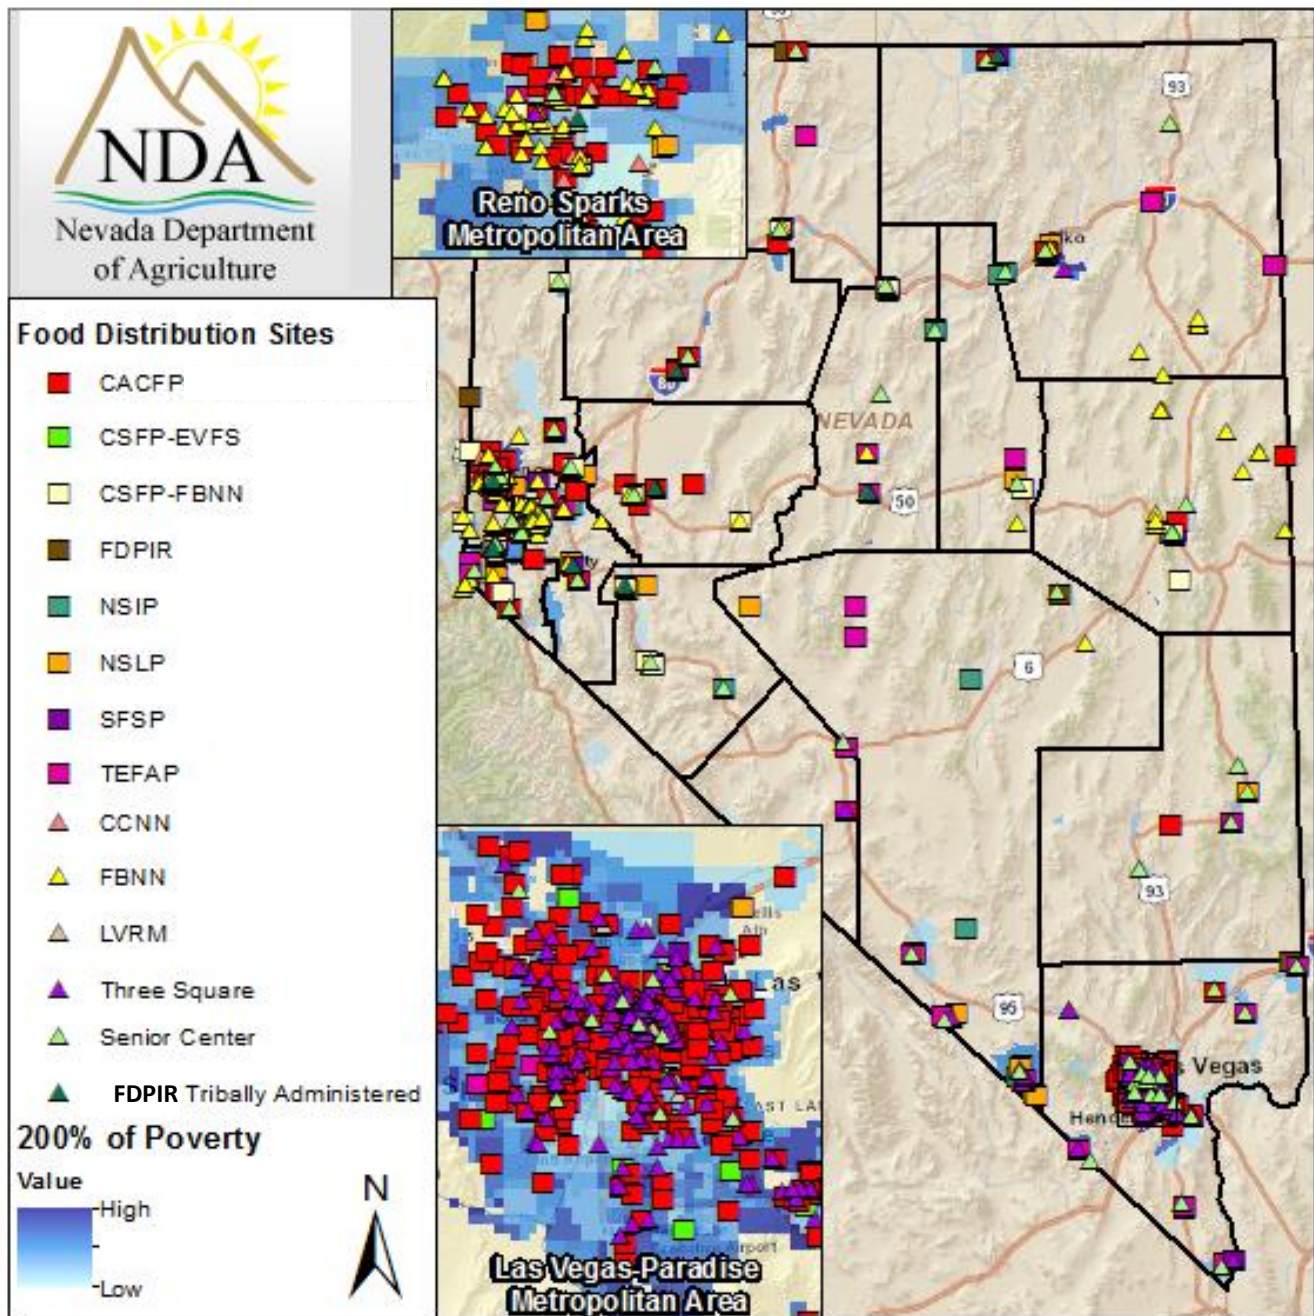

Las Vegas Rescue Mission: Direct service locations, Agency Food Pantries, and TEFAP;

Three Square: Agency Food Pantries, Back Pack, Kids Café*, Bonus TEFAP, and SFSP; and

East Valley Family Services: Direct service location, delivery locations, CSFP, and TEFAP.

*Note: Kids Café is funded by CACFP

Map of Food Distribution Sites in Nevada:

The map above provides an overview of distribution sites and Table 1 below compares population to poverty and the number of distribution sites and the number of individuals served by site. The analysis compares the total food distribution sites to the estimated total of food insecure individuals by county. For the purpose of this section, schools are indicated as a single school district unless there is a pantry at the school, in which case it is included as a stand-alone distribution site. Additionally, CACFP and SFSP sites are not included in this analysis because survey data was limited to survey respondents and not collected from all CACFP and SFSP sponsors.

State Total	2,758,931	1,211,697	508,913	568	896

Note: State totals do not add up. They are based on U.S. Census numbers.

Based on the data presented in Table 1, the majority of the food distribution sites are in the metropolitan areas with the largest count of population in need. When it comes to nonmetropolitan areas, the largest number of food distribution sites is in Lyon, Douglas and Nye County. On average, food distribution sites in Lander County serve the smallest number of individuals by site and Clark County serves the greatest number of individuals by site; indicating that there is a greater need in Clark County than in Lander. However this analysis does not consider size of county, distance individual would need to travel, other USDA funded programs (i.e. SNAP and WIC), informal food distribution programs, and food deserts.

Looking at the survey results 95 percent of the responding food pantries and on-site feeding agencies think that their clients have easy access to distribution sites. The majority of the food pantries are centrally located, easily accessible and easy to locate. Most of the sites are located on, or close to, bus routes, and they do provide delivery services if they have the capability, especially for children and handicap clients.

However, the limitations cited when it comes to access to food distribution sites were hours of operations, transportation cost and lack of transportation means in some nonmetropolitan areas. Some food distribution sites are open several days a week, whereas others were limited in their hours. Dates and times during the week or month when the closest pantry is open may present an issue for a client, and will sometimes force those in need to travel significant distance to get their food. Traveling cost and lack of transportation to food distribution sites is recognized as another limitation because some clients do not have financial means to afford the cost of public transportation.

Delivery Routes and Truck Capacity:

To define the overall food distribution system, data was gathered to identify truck routes, truck capacity, and review the schedule and frequency of delivery to determine if the food distribution system could be streamlined. The study looked at trucking routes for all distributing agencies, storage capacity and overall delivery costs.

The system route analysis was the most comprehensive section of the survey and complex to interpret and explain. Basic distribution statistics are presented in the table below.

Table 2. Major Distributor Delivery Routes, Truck, and Load Capacity:

Major Distributor	No. of Trucks	Total Truck Capacity (tons)	No. of Routes	Total Routes Run Annually
NDA	6	146	33	388
EVFS	1	0.75	9	108
FBNN	10	202.5	55	998
CCNN	4	28	-	-
Three Square	22	-	-	-
LVRM	1	10	-	-
Totals	44	387.25	95	1494

For detailed information about NDA routes see Appendix E NDA Route Map.

In the formal food distribution system, based on the survey results, there are 44 trucks running a total of 1,494 routes annually. Three Square operates via an “on-demand” distribution system so their routes were not easily identifiable.

The primary focus was to determine if inefficiency in the delivery system between major delivery agencies exist. Analysis was provided on overlapping sites as well as zip codes that are served by multiple agencies. Table 3 below identifies the number of overlapping agencies and related zip codes that receive deliveries from NDA, Three Square, Food Bank of Northern Nevada and Catholic Charities of Northern Nevada.

Table 3. Overlapping Routs for Major Distributor:

Region	# of Overlapping Agencies	# of overlapping Zip Codes
North Rural	7	7
North Metro	5 (NDA/FBNN), 8 (FBNN/CCNN)	12
South	29	All are distributed to by multiple major distributors in LV Metro.

North - Distribution Route Analysis & Truck Capacity:

In the North, specifically in the North Metro (Reno and Carson City), data shows 12 zip codes and 5 receiving agencies as “overlapping sites “ for NDA and FBNN when delivering food on regular basis. Two of these overlapping agencies are TEFAP recipients. Further, seven zip codes and seven agencies in the North Rural Nevada are identified as overlapping recipients of food by NDA and FBNN on regular basis, and six of those agencies receive TEFAP.

From a capacity perspective, average truck capacity of NDA trucks on these routes is 89 percent. The truck capacity for FBNN covering these routes is 78 percent.

Additionally, analysis shows that 33 routes have some extra initial capacity above 30 percent:

- NDA has 3 routes that have 30 percent or more excess load capacity (Route 9 to Sun Valley Hope Church; Route 18 to Douglas County Senior Center, Carson Valley Community Center and China Springs Youth Camp, and Route 7 to Douglas County School District)
- FBNN has 30 routes out of 55 that have 30 percent additional load capacity. FBNN has 30 direct services routes, such as mobile food pantry and child nutrition program distribution sites.

For detailed information regarding the North route analysis, including truck capacity see Appendix F DELIVERY: DATA TABLES FOR OVERLAPING ROUTES BY AGENCY: North Rural Route Analysis.

South - Distribution Route Analysis & Truck Capacity:

In the South, there are 29 agencies receiving deliveries from multiple major distributors – Three Square, EVFS, LVRM and NDA and 20 of these agencies receive TEFAP. Opportunities to streamline distribution need to be determined between these four agencies to assess truck capacity, food availability and realistic potential for collaboration.

Because Three Square runs an on-demand system, truck capacity cannot be assessed. All NDA routes are 100 percent at capacity.

For detailed information regarding the route analysis see Appendix F DELIVERY: DATA TABLES FOR OVERLAPING ROUTES BY AGENCY: Southern Nevada Route Analysis.

Warehouse Storage

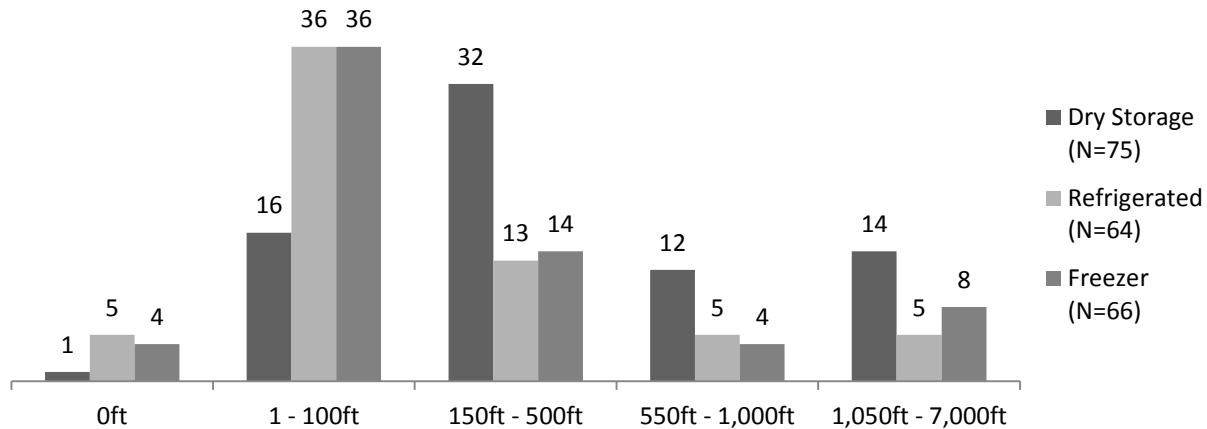

Warehouse storage is an integral part of food distribution and essential to determining the number of deliveries and size of delivery an agency can handle; therefore data was obtained to document current storage capacity and need. Total warehouse capacity of major distributors equals approximately 242,000 cubic feet between dry storage, refrigerated storage and freezers. All majors, except Las Vegas Rescue Mission, cited food storage facilities are currently adequate to meet demands.

Table 4. Warehouse and Storage Space for Major Distributors:

	Dry Storage	Refrigerated Storage	Freezers	Total Storage Capacity
NDA (3 Main Facilities – 1 in Reno, 2 in LV)
Cubic Feet	37,900	800 (unlimited in LV)	8,000 (unlimited in LV)	46,700
of Pallets	1,400	50-70 (unlimited in LV)	500-700 (unlimited in LV)
Food Bank NNV (1 Main Facility in Reno)
Cubic Feet	39,800	2,280	3,300	45,380
of Pallets	1,588	212	206
Three Square (1 Main Facility in LV)
Cubic Feet	65,200	38,400	36,000	139,600

of Pallets	248	18	17
East Valley Family (1 in Las Vegas)
Cubic Feet				2,000
of Pallets
Total				241,954

Majority of respondents have total storage facilities less than 500 cubic feet in overall storage. Almost all reporting agencies have one storage facility. The majority of agencies have storage less than 100 feet. 33 small-to-medium sized pantries/on-site feeding agencies, about 40 percent, stated their storage facilities failed to meet needs.

Graph 4. – Total Warehouse Space and Storage Capacity for Small-to-Medium Pantries:

Cost of Delivery

Delivery cost for each agency was calculated to document and compare cost. NDA delivers state-wide, FBNN and Three Square delivery to multiple counties, LVRM, CCNN, and EVFS operate within their county location. NDA and FBNN operate delivery with a set route system; whereas Three Square operates an on-demand system. All of these factors in addition to their administrative/management cost impact their overall delivery cost per pound of food.

The chart below provides a breakdown of components to calculate the total cost per pound. The average delivery cost of food by major distributors ranged from $0.11-$0.15/pound. In order to compare similar costs across organizations, food expense and marketing/fundraising expenses were excluded from this calculation. Average cost of food delivered to clients by small-to-medium sized food pantries/on-site feeding agencies averaged $0.25/pound, of which 65 percent of their total operating budget is food expense.

Table 5. The summary of total cost per pound to deliver:

Agency	Cost per Pound of Food (Admin./Mgmt. w/out cost of ownership)	Cost per Pound of Food (Delivery)	Total per Pound
USDA Direct (Managed by NDA)	$0.013	N/A
NDA	$0.043	$0.065	$0.11
FBNN	$0.013	$0.116	$0.13
Three Square	$0.055	$0.090	$0.14
CCNN	$0.021	$0.041	$0.06
LVRM	$0.021	$0.024	$0.05
EVFS	$0.151		$0.151
Small-to-Medium Size Agencies		$0.25/lb	$0.25/lb

For a detailed summary of operating expenses see Appendix G Delivery: Data Tables for Major Distributor Operating Expenses.

Food

This section describes the current food sources, quantities, varieties and need.

Food Sources

USDA food represents 12 percent of the total food in the food distribution system, with food banks sourcing roughly 53 percent. Large agencies that redistribute bring into the system an additional 5 percent. Lastly, small to medium sized agencies secure an additional 30 percent through donations and food purchase. Roughly 84 million pounds of food are sourced across the whole system annually of which 58 percent is donated.

Food sources for each agency or agency type is illustrated in the table below. Due to food redistribution, there is double counting between agencies. This table best describes how much new food the agency brings into the system and where each agency secures food. School programs are not included.

Table 6. Food Sources by Agency Type:

	New Pounds Sourced	Commodities	Food Banks	Donated	Purchased	Food Vendors	Other
NDA	10,352,691	100%
Food Bank Northern Nevada	11,654,032	9%		85%		6%
Three Square	32,257,474	<1%		88%	12%
Las Vegas Rescue Mission	2,080,000	20%	47%	33%
Catholic Charities	2,100,000	49%	2%	17%		32%
East Valley Family Services	0	90%	10%
Food Pantries	~ 25,000,000	12%	56%	17%	9%	1%	5%
Child Nutrition		9%	2%	1%	16%	62%	10%
Senior Centers		7%	20%	4%	7%	46%	17%

Due to USDA meal requirements, schools, CACFP, SFSP, and senior centers purchased most of their food from food vendors, which are one of the most expensive food sources.

The table below represents a summary of the reasons that client facing agencies reported sourcing food outside of NDA and Food Banks.

Table 7. Major Reasons for Sourcing Food other than NDA and Food Banks:

Food Pantry	Child Care	Senior Centers	School Districts
<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Availability for what we are serving on menu • Utilization of food based upon expiration date. • Quality 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Price • Variety • Availability or specific items needed for nutrition or diets 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Not available through Commodities • Cost • Delivery 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Variety, necessary items that cannot be obtained • Availability

For example, when it comes to food sourced from NDA, respondents were citing lack of variety of canned vegetables and fruits and canned proteins so they need to source them from food vendors, or that items available are highly processed foods with costly processing fees. One of the reasons for sourcing food other than from food banks is sometimes availability and variety of food at the retail store is better than the food banks, but also retail stores sell the products with a longer shelf life for the same price that food banks sell it.

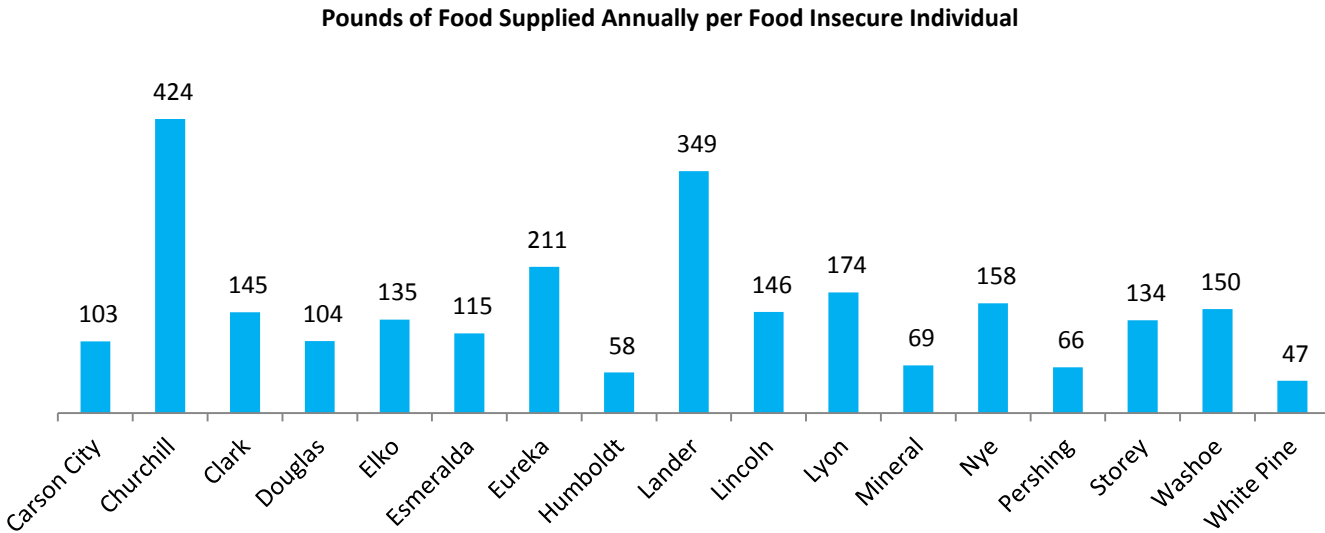

When it comes to quality of food delivered to small-to –medium pantries and on-site feeding agencies, overall results of the survey are positive. Most of the responding agencies do not have major issues with quality of food, citing overall gratitude for the contributions. However, several issues have been noted in regards to quality of the food that is delivered by three major distributing agencies. For example when it comes to quality of some processed food distributed by NDA, survey recipients cited that chicken strips are inconsistent and cheese burger sliders are rubbery. Comments regarding food banks quality of the food is expiration date, receiving out-of-date packaged food, spoiled fruits and vegetables, and food on the verge of spoiling.

Food Quantity

Food supplied by major distributors and other emergency food agencies resulted in about 84 million pounds of food in fiscal year ending 2014. On average, the system supplied about 160 pounds of food per food insecure individual. (School foods are not included.) Roughly, about 60 percent of small-to-medium sized agencies report being able to provide enough food most of the time. However, approximately 66 percent of large agencies that redistribute report shortfalls when it comes to amount of food that their clients receive.

The distribution of the food across the state is most accurately described by total pounds of food supplied per food insecure individual. Churchill County is receiving the highest volume of food, while White Pine County is receiving the lowest.

Graph 4 - Total Food Supplied by County:

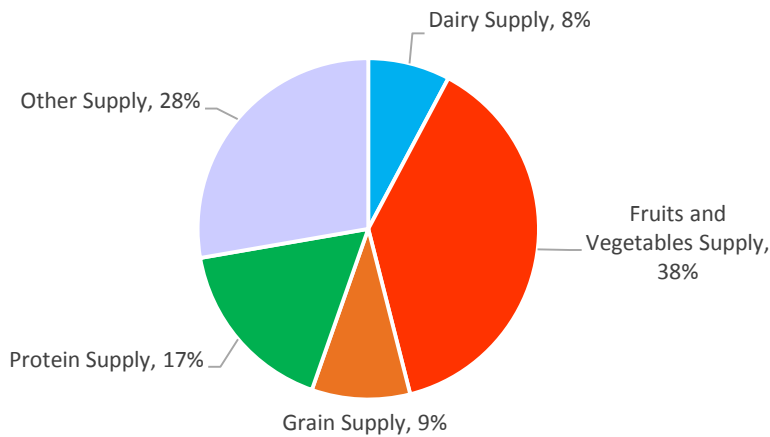

Graph 4. shows within the formal food distribution system the average amount of food measured in pounds supplied per each food insecure individual. Churchill County is receiving the highest volume of food, while White Pine County is receiving the lowest. It is important to include that analysis should look into number of individuals in need, as well as number of distribution site in each county. For example, Clark County, supplies 145 pounds of food on average to 1,383 people who are in need of food annually at each of 286 food distribution sites.

Food Variety

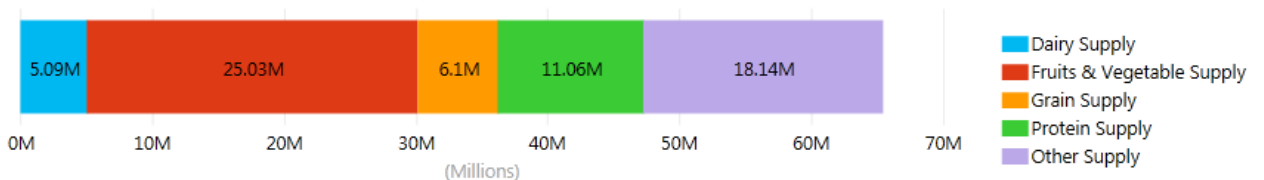

Major distributors receive and distribute about 84 million pounds of food, of which 40 percent is fruits, vegetables & juice, representing fresh fruits and vegetables by food banks and canned/frozen by NDA.

Graph 8. Percentage of Food Categories Distributed by Major Distributors:

The “Other” category includes beverages, baby food, entrees/combined food. Non-food items are excluded from this summary for simplicity.

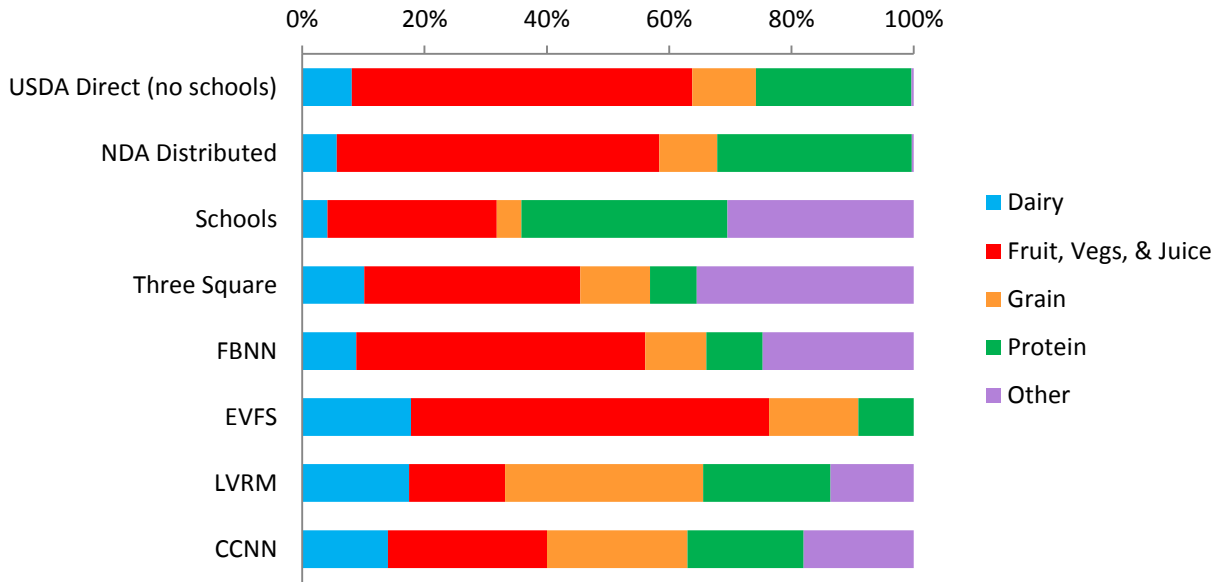

Graph 9. Estimated Value of Different Food Categories Distributed by Major Distributing Agencies:

 Supply equals about 68 M due to category reporting being unavailable for some agencies.*

The proportion of food categories by major distributor is represented as a percentage of the total food distributed by each agency in graph 10 below.

Graph 10. Proportion of Food Categories by Major Distributing Agencies:

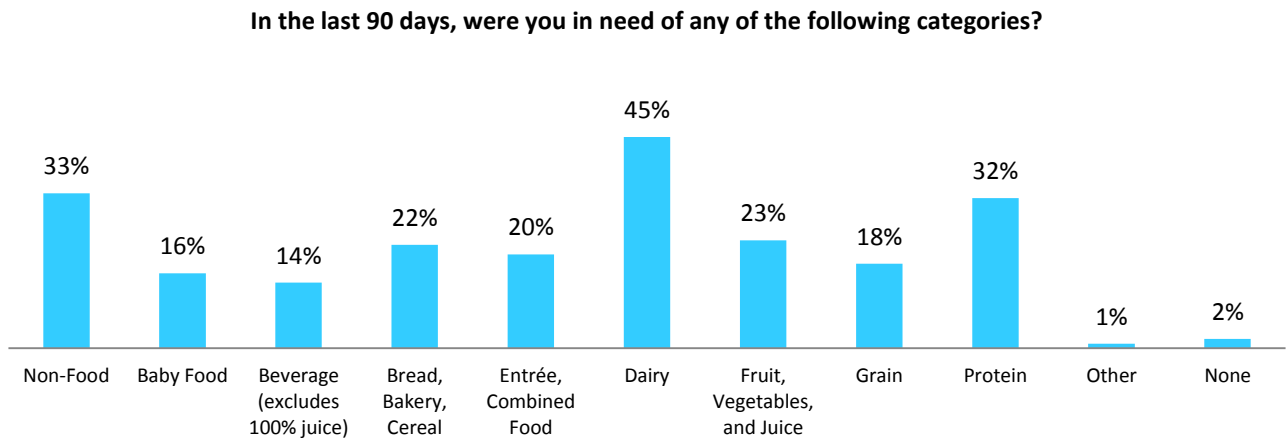

Distribution of the food by category is provided in five maps located in the Appendix H Food Maps by Food Category. Additionally, the data tables of food category distributed by agency within each county are also provided in the Appendix H Data Tables for County-by-County Agency List of Annual Food Totals.

Type of Food Needed

This section looks at need from the perspective of pantries expressing need in food. The survey was designed to collect data regarding the type and the amount of food needed to meet the needs of food insecure individuals. The pantries provided data regarding the type of food needed and below is a graph indicating the type and amount of food categories.

Graph 11. Percentage of Food Categories Needed by Pantries:

Overall, pantries stated the ability to provide a fully balanced food offering about 40 percent of the time. Dairy, protein and non-food items were the categories cited as most needed by pantries. Comments from the survey regarding food categories are as follows:

- Non-Food: Majority of respondents cited needs of hygiene products such as toilet paper, diapers and toothpaste/brush.
- Fruits/Vegetables: The responses were primarily for fresh and canned fruits and vegetables.
- Dairy: Many survey respondents expressed a preference for shelf stable items, as refrigeration space is limited.
- Protein: A significant number of respondents requested that meat products be canned or frozen.
- Cereal: Majority of respondents noted their clients prefer cold cereal over hot cereal and/or oatmeal.

Highest need category identified by area pantries:

- Southern Nevada metro pantries: 51 percent dairy products and 47 percent non-food products such as toilet paper and diapers.
- Northern Nevada metro pantries: 75 percent dairy products and 60 percent protein.
- Rural pantries: 61 percent dairy products and 39 percent non-food products for personal hygiene.

Detail information is provided in Appendix I Food Need by Urban and Rural.

The data analysis in Appendix J Food: Data Tables for Overall Need by County explores what is being provided against what is needed within the overall food distribution system as it relates to different food categories. The analysis of the food system is not intended to meet in total the needs illustrated below, but rather to determine within the counties, where the estimated gap is not met as it relates to different food categories. However to determine this conclusively, SNAP and WIC data needs to be included in future analysis.

CONCLUSION (KEY FINDINGS) AND RECOMMENDATIONS:

Nevada has both a formal and informal process for providing food assistance. The formal process was analyzed recognizing the major food distributing agencies are structured and organized differently and each of them is unique in their operations and clients they serve. However, some similarities do exist as well as overlaps in routes and clients they serve.

- Identified agencies within the formal system.
- The formal system includes: government, food banks, pantries, tribes, child nutrition programs, senior centers and schools and they are identified as major distributors, large agencies that also redistribute, small-to-medium sized agencies, food access locations/pantries and on-site feeding- representing 132M pounds of food in the system (or 84 million pounds of food excluding schools.)
- The current food distribution system is efficient.
- There are 568 food distribution sites statewide with the majority of sites located in metropolitan areas with the largest population in need.
- Lander County serves the smallest number of individuals by site and Clark County serves the greatest number of individuals by site.
- 95 percent of responding food pantries and on-site feeding agencies think that their clients have easy access to distribution sites.
- Major distributors have 44 trucks with 1,494 routes annually (not including Three Square routes due to on-demand system.)
- NDA has six trucks operating 33 routes and three of the routes have 30 percent or more excess load capacity in the north and all trucks are at full load capacity in the south. Food Bank of Northern Nevada has 10 trucks operating 55 routes and 30 routes have 30 percent or more excess load capacity. Three Square has 22 trucks but routes and load capacity cannot be calculated due to on-demand delivery system.
- Total warehouse capacity of major distributors is 234,000 cubic feet between dry storage, refrigerated storage and freezers.
- 33 survey respondents of small-to-medium size pantries, about 40 percent, stated their storage facility fails to meet need.
- Major distributors' average cost ranges from .11-.15 cents per pound.
- Small-to-medium size agencies average cost is .25 cents per pound with 65 percent of operating budget on food expense.
- 12 percent of food is from USDA Foods, 53 percent is from food banks, 5 percent is added by large agencies, and 30 percent from small-to-medium size agencies through donations and purchase.
- Approximately 66 percent of large agencies reported shortfalls in the amount of food supplied to clients.
- About 60 percent of small-to-medium agencies reported being able to provide enough food most of the time.
- Survey respondents state the highest need of food variety as being dairy and protein, followed by hygiene products.
- Pantries stated the ability to provide a fully balanced food offering about 40 percent of the time.

- Southern Nevada Metro Pantries: 51 percent needing dairy products and 47 percent non-food products such as toilet paper and diapers.
- Northern Nevada Metro Pantries: 75 percent needing dairy products and 60 percent protein.
- Rural Pantries: 61 percent needing dairy products and 39 percent non-food such as personal hygiene products.

RECOMMENDATIONS:

- Explore the possibility of backhauling from rural food hubs to major metros as a means to connect farmers to low cost distribution
- Establish working groups for northern and southern major distributors to focus on overlapping routes that were not at full truck capacity to determine feasibility of combining loads
- Explore USDA Rural Development grants for storage expansion of food pantries expressing limitations in food distribution due to storage
- Explore consolidation of purchasing products for school districts and senior centers to reduce the cost of food purchased from vendors
- Establish a stakeholder group to review the federal food ordering, allocations and administrative funding by program on an annual basis to coordinate across major distributors
- Suggest if funding is available, revise the food gap analysis to include SNAP, WIC and Child Nutrition Programs
- Develop online maps to locate services available in geographical locations
- Review online maps to identify areas in need of food distribution sites (Three Square Food Bank 2014 Census Report identified 89012, 89086, 89129, 89166 as potential areas for sites)
- Suggest if funding is available, conduct client survey for need and access
- Suggest outreach to Nevada dairy processors for possible partnership to address the dairy need
- Suggest periodic review of the gap versus supply
- Need to identify members within the informal food system

Cherie Jamason – Food Bank of Northern Nevada Cindi Mitchell – Food Bank of Northern Nevada Jenelle Gimlin – NDA Donelle Barton – NDA Tatjana Vukovic – NDA Wanda Shepard – NDA Chelsea Voors- OnStrategy	Summary of the discussion as of 7/25/14: General Costs: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> FBNN wants the costs to be very specifically looking at food storage, packaging, handling and distribution (solely focused on distribution costs.) NDA feels strongly that other monies (marketing & advertising) should be included in the calculation. FBNN & NDA think that we should look at infrastructure & equipment as a way of understanding overall distribution capacity. Warehouse supplies: need to figure out how to make an apples to apples comparison. FBNN costs will be larger because they actually repackage food (boxes, shrink wrap, etc.). Salaries and Staffing Costs <ul style="list-style-type: none"> FBNN wants only warehouse workers & truck drivers included as labor costs. NDA feels that admin costs should be accounted for. NDA suggested using an indirect cost calculation, but we need to figure out what would be included in this on both ends before moving forward. FBNN requested to know what is included as part of NDA's calculation so that they could match it. Meals Distributed/Meals Leveraged <ul style="list-style-type: none"> FBNN thinks they should be acknowledged/incorporated NDA says that Meal Leveraged are

				unrelated and that Meals distributed should be accounted for only at the "second tier" of the analysis

For the purpose of this analysis, Supplied food is defined by the volume of food by category reported by each major distributor for the reporting period. Additional food provided by small-to-medium sized pantries is not included as this level of detail was not requested in the survey.

The determination of need is defined by Gap, or “relative need” and relative need estimates are based on the following data points:

- The population at 200 percent of poverty by county (U.S. Census 2008-2012)
- Roughly 42 percent of those living at or below poverty experience food insecurity 7 out of 12 months per year (30.3 weeks).

- A self-reported weekly budget shortfall report is $15.82. Cost of a meal based on is $2.64/1.2 pounds in a meal = $2.20. (USDA 2013 Food Insecurity Report). The gap or “relative need” is 5.4 pounds a week, 7 out of 12 months a year for 162 pounds per year in the following categories: .43 lbs of grains, 2.27 lbs of fruits and vegetables, 1.45 lbs of dairy, .45 lbs of protein and .80 lbs of other to include beverages.
